ISIS.

Syria's and Iraq's Destroyed Monuments

It seems utterly pitiful to realise Western Governments had been fighting ISIS. for well over a year, losing the fight and with the enemy becoming increasingly entrenched within that region all the time. But when Russia becomes involved they'd only been there for a week and within that short time had nearly obliterated them. The problem with the West is they can hardly be bothered to do the right thing in just about anything they attempt and when it came to the monster they themselves had created with their botching and incompetence, they really did not have a clue or a care on how to deal with it.

Many will be only too pleased to see ISIS. finally pummeled into the dirt where they belong and others may think these words a little harsh. But do remember we're talking about a subclass who would happily slice someone's head off, and had often done so what's more, and laugh about it over their next meal. There are claims about Russia's tactics, RT. the Russian TV. channel dismisses these, while the Western Medias are hardly going to give them glowing reports in any case. It's all the matter of gleaning whatever information you can between the various channels, but no matter what one's personal views are on war, it can never be right for pure evil to prevail.

Once all of this mess is eventually sorted out I personally believe many of these old monuments, so wantonly destroyed by the mindless thugs, could be rebuilt. Obviously they would only be replicas and would never be the same as before, but the sites still exist, there are numerous photographs from all kinds of angles and so it would be far from impossible for this to happen. And it should all I think be finance by the US. and UK. military on principle. They are the ones who caused all of this and so they should be the ones to pay up.

I have forwarded this idea onto UNESCO. who have not got back. But at least this idea is now out there and bringing ideas to the fore is often what campaigning's about in any case.

The Gravest Threat to our Winter Bird Visitors coming over from the East.

Dogger Bank: 400 extra Turbines Right in the Middle of their Migration Route.

Amber Rudd, the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change

In this letter received (please see below) gives news of impending doom faced by millions of both migratory and seabirds. In these reports (see the links) we read about the Secretary of State's such 'careful considerations' whilst having totally ignored any real advice that's been given in the past. With what's believed to be an average mortality of around 1 death per turbine per day, and it can only be guessed, we are looking at the following mortalities, that's over and above of course what's now being killed by the turbines already in place at other sites.

Obviously these deaths would dramatically increase at the migration times of autumn and early spring in this particular case, whilst equally decreasing the rest of the year but still taking out unsustainable numbers of seabirds. On average however below is what we expect the figures to be.

400.....estimated bird deaths per day

146,000.....estimated bird deaths per year

1,460,000.....estimated bird deaths per 10 years

Given this is not even necessary and that wave-power would cause none of this. We hereby accuse the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change of genocide.

Subject: FW: 'Wind-Farm Apocalypse.'

Dear Mr Piller,

Thank you for your e-mailed letters of 13, 16 and 17 August 2015 and 7 September 2015 with attachments regarding proposed offshore wind farms at Dogger Bank. Please accept my apologies for the delay in replying.

As you are probably aware, development consent has been granted by the Secretary of State to Forewind Ltd for two separate offshore wind farms in the Dogger Bank zone: 1) Dogger Bank Creyke Beck; and 2) Dogger Bank Teesside A & B .

The Secretary of State set out fully in the decision letters dated 17 February 2015 and 4 August 2015 her consideration of the applications and reasons for deciding to grant development consent for the two projects and I am unable to comment further.

The decision letters and other decision documentation, including the Development Consent Orders and Habitats Regulations Assessments, can be seen at:

Mr. Piller,

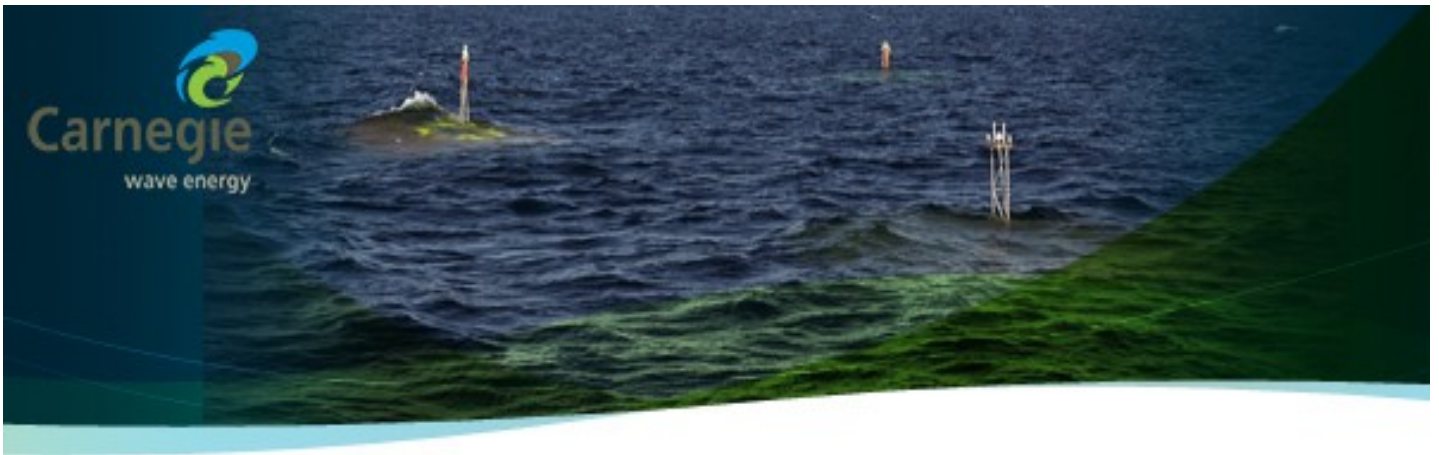

I apologize for not responding sooner. I understand that the task force looking into these issues is in the process of wrapping up its work on this.

The working group is seeking to finish its report sometime in November. As we get into November, we will hopefully have a more definitive date for completion of the report. If you have any questions or comments or if I can be of further assistance, please don't hesitate to let me know. Thanks.

Subject: Monsanto Lobby Day Happening Now

Oregon Right to Know Big news, Robert!

Last month, pro-labeling activists flooded the Capitol with tens of thousands of calls opposing the DARK Act, the bill that would ban local GMO labeling efforts and make it harder for people to know what's in their food. Thanks to your efforts, not a single Democratic Senator has signed-on as a co-sponsor. That's a big win for us.

But the fight isn't over yet. Monsanto and their corporate cronies are doing all they can to shore up support. TODAY, Monsanto and their allies in Big Food have launched a huge lobbying blitz on Capitol Hill. They are hoping to pick off Senators who are still on the fence about the DARK Act.

We can't let these corporate lobbyists win over ANY support today. We've received word that the following Senators are among Monsanto's top targets, so we need you to make an urgent phone call right now and tell these Senators to OPPOSE the DARK Act:

Senator Claire McCaskill, Missouri - (202) 224-6154
Senator Tom Carper, Delaware - (202) 224-2441
Senator Chris Coons, Delaware - (202) 224-5042
Senator Dick Durbin, Illinois - (202) 224-2152
Senator Amy Klobuchar, Minnesota - (202) 224-3244

Our grassroots efforts are working, and if we keep pushing, we will be able to defeat Monsanto and the DARK Act.

Thank you for your support,

Paige Richardson

Subject: Help us get weedkiller out of UK bread

Up to 30%* of UK bread tested had a surprising new ingredient...

It's hard to believe isn't it. But Government tests* prove it. Up to 30% of bread tested contained glyphosate, the main ingredient in most commercial weedkillers, including Roundup. And if that wasn't shocking enough, a report by the World Health Organisation's International Agency for Research on Cancer has just found that glyphosate is a probable carcinogen for humans.

Please donate today to help us remove this weedkiller from UK bread for good.

7/10 graphic

Despite the dangers, glyphosate is being used more and more in UK farming. Over the last 20 years its use on wheat and other crops has increased by a whopping 400%. So no wonder it's turning up in our staple foods like bread, cereals and biscuits. Right now the only choice to eat glyphosate free bread is organic. And it's not surprising then that if it's in our food, it's making it into our bodies. A recent European study on city dwellers found that in the UK 7/10 people had traces of weedkiller in their urine.

Chemical giants such as Monsanto advise farmers to spray their crops with glyphosate just before harvest, so that it will dry the crop and remove the weeds, making it easier to harvest. Worryingly, glyphosate is rarely used alone, it is mixed with numerous other chemicals. Many of these other chemicals, known as adjuvants, are themselves toxic. In fact, according to recent research*, some of these mixtures can be up to 1,000 times more toxic than glyphosate alone. Find out more about glyphosate here.

400% in 20 years graphic

We strongly believe that using glyphosate, and glyphosate based products, as a pre-harvest treatment is fundamentally wrong and are committed to calling for an end to its use. But we need your help.

Please donate today to help us remove glyphosate from our bread.

Your donation today - however large or small - could help us:

- Go head to head with Monsanto and other big chemical companies.
- Continue to campaign to stop the use of glyphosate as a pre-harvest treatment.
- Scale up our pioneering work with farmers to find and share effective ways of farming without harmful chemicals.

Thanks to over 20,000 people like you who have signed our petition asking UK bread manufacturers and retailers to stop using wheat treated with glyphosate, our voices are starting to be heard. But that's just the beginning. We won't rest until we have removed glyphosate from our bread for good. Please donate today and help us continue our campaign for food free from harmful chemicals.

Thank you.

Subject: "Queen of Ivory" ARRESTED

BREAKING NEWS

“The Queen of Ivory,” a Chinese national, was arrested by a specialized Task Force in Tanzania.

She is “the most important ivory trafficker ever arrested in the country.”

A Task Force under leadership of the Tanzania’s National and Transnational Serious Crimes Investigation Unit just arrested Yang Feng Glan, the woman known as the “Queen of Ivory” along with a number of high-level Chinese ivory traffickers.

She confessed to many of her crimes and is now facing a maximum sentence of 20-30 years of imprisonment.

This is HUGE Robert. Tanzania has lost 85,000 elephants between 2009 and 2014 from elephant poaching and the Queen of Ivory has been trafficking ivory since 2006.

Thanks to the Task Force, every single poacher and trafficker that has dealt with the Queen of Ivory is a target for law enforcement. The Task Force has truly made it possible for law enforcement to put these poachers and traffickers behind bars and to save precious elephants from being slaughtered.

The Task Force shows that we can truly put an end to the poaching and slaughter of elephants.

Early this morning, Zimbabwe announced they won't charge Walter Palmer for killing Cecil the Lion -- even though he admits he made the kill.

That's devastating news. But Robert, we can't give up on protecting lions like Cecil. We've got to go on offense.

We have a chance to stop all this.

By passing Initiative 1401 next month in Washington, we can crack down on the worldwide slaughter of endangered species, toughen penalties for poachers, and bring many species back from the brink.

But we're running out of time. We need YOUR help to save the lions, elephants, rhinos and seven other treasured animals threatened with extinction.

Please chip in $5 or more before it's too late >>

Climate change denier Rupert Murdoch just bought National Geographic.

You read that right: one of the world's most notorious climate change deniers, whose Fox media empire spreads misinformation on a massive scale, just got control of National Geographic.

The National Geographic Society does incredibly important work on climate change -- from publishing groundbreaking stories to giving grants to scientists. But the new deal hands 73% ownership of its media operations to Fox.

We may not be able to stop the deal from going through, but together with our allies at ClimateTruth.org we can stop Murdoch from meddling if we put enough pressure on the board. Top publications enforce editorial independence by appointing Public Editors who represent the public and investigate complaints of editorial interference.

What about the bird murder deniers???

This is un-bee-lievable. Pesticide manufacturers Bayer and Syngenta were at a key UK government meeting on whether to lift the pesticide known to be responsible for the massive bee colony collapse -- and now the EU's landmark ban on bee-killing neonics is a grave danger.

The UK government lifted the ban after consultation with Bayer and Syngenta. The EU's momentum ban on neonics is coming to an end in a few months, and you can bet Bayer and Syngenta is going to try to influence Europe's decision too -- these companies have a long history of spending millions on lobbying governments to maximize its profits at the expenses of our pollinators.

Subject: The Earth Wants YOU

I know that I haven't written to our "church faithful" in many weeks, nor contributed to the social forums, and that is because I've been writing a book for City Lights Books. That's a dream come true and in the next 64 hours I am submitting my last bit of writing. It will be published on Earth Day next year, and is called "The Earth Wants YOU!"

And this is the name of our tour, which begins on Monday in Seattle, opening for Neil Young, and concludes on the Sunday before Christmas in Joe's Pub at the Public, on December 20th.

We are so busy on so many fronts this fall, a book, an audiobook, a ten-song record called "Resist Extinction", a New York campaign against glyphosate spraying in our parks, our radio show on Pacifica, opening these five shows in the Pacific Northwest and the Bay Area with the only rock star who will publicly damn Monsanto, Walmart and Starbucks on one record.... capped by our 8 Sundays at Joe's Pub at the Public Theater back in NYC.

Our wacky anti-consumerist, pro-Earth bunch of singing-activists, led by an aging Elvis impersonator, are now in collaborations with Vice Media, MSNBC and Flipboard, and the film unit at the Guardian. And yet, with all these instruments of amplification bringing our Earthalujah! shouts to the world, we remain mostly broke. No foundations will touch us, possibly because we get arrested so often. Or maybe because we manipulate religious symbols. We're not really sure. All of our support comes from people who read our bulletins.

As we depart for our first tour in the Pacific NW, we look forward to meeting the Kayaktivists in Seattle, Adbusters in Vancouver, eco-activists in Oregon, tree sitters in the forests, organic agriculture activists in Eugene. Let us thank in advance the families putting us up in their homes.

We were able to raise 25k in about ten days, mostly from small donors, to join Neil Young on his swing through the west. But much of the value is your taking us into your homes, driving us around, volunteering even as we volunteer. This is a cause, ultimately, although we like humor and music to carry the message, and prayer and song to sustain it.
